Milk Inspectors Trespassers.

The hearty way in which the farmers are co-operating with Dr. Darlington and his inspectors in their efforts to secure a pure milk supply for this city is indicated by a statement to the milk raisers about Middletown, N. Y., issued by O. M. Mapes, leader of the Dairyman's league movement in Orange county. Kick the inspectors off your farms is the substance of Mr. Mapes' advice.

They are trespassers and can be driven away by the use of force if necessary. "Dr. Darlington will find," continues the farmers' spokesman, "that he has bitten off more than he can chew. He cannot enforce his rules because he has no jurisdiction outside of the city." How very little chance there is of attaining cleanly and sanitary conditions on the farms of men in the above state of mind towards the movement for purer milk must be manifest to even the most prejudiced opponents of pasteurization.

The only reply now possible to such an attitude is the barring of the milk from New York City. According to Mr. Mapes the Dairyman's League will soon control enough of the supply to "successfully resist any unreasonable demand of the health department of New York." Furthermore, even if the state health officers of the various states supplying New York City with milk had the power to enforce cleanliness on the farms, safe and satisfactory conditions could not be maintained without the intelligent co-operation of the farmers themselves.

A feeling of antagonism toward the law and toward the health officers would go a long way toward defeating the purpose of the reform. The creation of an intelligent appreciation of the necessity for what the farmer is at present evidently inclined to consider fads and frills can only be accomplished by years of propaganda, and until it is accomplished a pure raw supply can hardly be hoped for.

In the meantime, while the educational work is in progress, a proper pasteurization of all the milk brought to the city, below a certain standard of purity, offers the best protection to the consumer. It is the appreciation of this fact by the general public that has created such a strong demand for pure pasteurized milk. The Free-market, Grifenhagen ordinance now before the board of aldermen, Mr. Mapes' statement is another argument in favor of the ordinance.—New York Globe.

James S. Morrill and his aunt, Miss Brown, left Stratford on Wednesday last for Boston and Houghton, Mass., where they will visit friends for a few days, and then go to their winter home in Washington, D. C.

The public schools closed on Friday, Nov. 8, after a successful ten weeks' term. The schools of the lower village gave an interesting Halloween entertainment in Barrett hall on Thursday evening, the 31st. The schools of the upper village gave an interesting entertainment in town hall on Saturday evening, the 2d. It was a very stormy evening, yet a good audience was present to listen to the young people. Both entertainments netted a very good sum of cold cash to be used for the benefit of the schools.

Services were held in the Congregational house of worship last Sunday for the first time since it was vacated for repairs early in the season. Worship has been maintained during the summer in town hall on Sundays, and the midweek meetings have been held in private houses. The interior of the meeting house has been much improved by retinting the walls, changing the singers' gallery from the rear of the auditorium to the north side of the pulpit; rebuilding the pulpit platform; painting anew the woodwork; putting down a new carpet throughout the house and purchasing new pews and chairs.

The new carpet was purchased by the Ladies' Benevolent circle, and the new pews and chairs are the gift of James S. Morrill. The occasion was made a rally day, both for the regular church services and the Sunday school. It was a stormy day, yet a good audience was present at the morning service, at which the pastor was assisted by Rev. Jasper H. Harding.

Advent, and by Rev. Henry Cummings, pastor of the church for 31 years previous to the present pastorate. In addition to the improvements on the inside, a new platform at the front has displaced the old one, which was unsafe from decay. A new weather vane and points of the compass have been placed on the tower to take the place of the old ones, which were blown off during a high wind in the early part of last winter. Needed repairs were also made on the tower and the roof. The church was organized Nov. 20, 1820, with a charter membership of 13 persons. The first acting pastor was the Rev. H. F. Leavitt, who began his labors here in January, 1828, being ordained as an evangelist. Through his instrumentality the present house of worship was erected in 1832, and a parsonage two years later. Including Mr. Leavitt, the church has had seven pastors since its organization. Its membership has never been large, but its influence has extended far beyond its own town. Two of its members went to South Africa as teachers in the Huguon school for girls at Wellington, one of whom is now a teacher there. In different parts of the United States are some of its former members, who are occupying prominent positions in Christian churches where they live. A young physician recently called for his letter from this church to the Old South church in Boston and the request was granted. The church has taken a deep interest in missions and given very liberally, according to its means.

Mr. Harris having spent the summers of his boyhood days in town with his grandfather, he is well known to the town. He is president of the Lament Bacon, retains with pleasure the memory of his associations here. When a young man he engaged in railroad work, which he has made his life work, filling acceptably and with fidelity the different responsibilities placed upon him. His promotions have led him to the position of the top round in the ladder several years ago, when he was elected to the presidency of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad at a salary of sixty thousand dollars a year. Mr. Carroll, who accompanied Mr. Harris from the west, is the attorney for the road of which Mr. Harris is president, and he expressed great surprise and delight at such well kept towns as he had seen on this, his first trip to Vermont.

BIG SHEEP RANCH IN
Flock of One Thousand and Nine Adjacent Farms May Revive the Big Industry.

Rutland, Nov. 18.—There is a possibility of a revival of sheep raising in Vermont.

A New York firm has bought nine adjoining farms in the towns of Huntington and Starkboro, at the foot of the highest mountains in the Green Mountain range, for the purpose of establishing a sheep ranch.

It will stock them with 1,000 sheep to be watched over by a shepherd with trained dogs. This will keep them safe from the attacks of dogs, which are at present the greatest drawback to sheep raising in this state.

The breeders of Merino sheep, which is the breed kept up in Vermont since the days when the industry boomed, have enjoyed a small corner in the market, and they predict a speedy revival of the wool business in this state.

THE VERMONT HILL.

Big Sheep Ranch in

Flock of One Thousand and Nine Adjacent Farms May Revive the Big Industry.

Rutland, Nov. 18.—There is a possibility of a revival of sheep raising in Vermont.

A New York firm has bought nine adjoining farms in the towns of Huntington and Starkboro, at the foot of the highest mountains in the Green Mountain range, for the purpose of establishing a sheep ranch.

It will stock them with 1,000 sheep to be watched over by a shepherd with trained dogs. This will keep them safe from the attacks of dogs, which are at present the greatest drawback to sheep raising in this state.

The breeders of Merino sheep, which is the breed kept up in Vermont since the days when the industry boomed, have enjoyed a small corner in the market, and they predict a speedy revival of the wool business in this state.

A Merino sheep is as distinctively a Vermont product as the Morgan horse, which the government is trying to restore. Though the sheep raising industry has practically vanished from Vermont, the finest breeding stock in the world is still to be found in the state.

Vermont soil and climate and the capability of Vermont breeders have preserved the pre-eminence of the Vermont stock and the breeders have an active organization to maintain it. These choice sheep are much petted animals. They are not allowed to run loose in the barnyard like ordinary sheep, or to take horse fodder from a rack, but are as carefully stabled, fed and blanketed as a prized race horse would be.

A good Merino buck is worth more than most horses, and in the paucity days of the sheep industry Edwin Hammond of Middlebury refused $10,000 for a famous ram, "Gold Drop."

Sheep breeders tell now M. T. Shackleton of Wallingford refused $7,000 in 1885 for a ram which at one shearing netted 314 pounds of wool, valued at $52.62 a pound.

The early home and present center of the Merino sheep breeding in this state is Addison county, with Rutland county a close second. Fine breeding sheep have been shipped from the Green Mountain state to Australia for 25 years. South African and South American breeders are beginning to call on Vermont for breeding stock.

It is said that Thomas Jefferson brought the first Spanish Merinos to America, but Col. David Humphreys, minister to Spain, made the first important shipment in 1802. Edwin Hammond of Middlebury has the credit of bringing the Merinos to the perfection which almost makes them a distinct breed.

The Transhumant sheep which came from the confiscated flock of Spanish nobles, were brought to this country to the number of about 5,000, 3,000 of them reaching Vermont. It is from this flock that the Merino sheep of today originated.

Rev. Bertrand P. Judd, a representative of the international reform bureau of Washington, accepted the pulpit at the Methodist church Sunday morning and in the evening he spoke before a union meeting at the Baptist church on the subject, "The Citizen as a Reformer."

The Randolph Woman's Literary club gave an English luncheon at the Bethany parish house on Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock, at which 31 of its members were present. The affair was in the hands of a committee, three of whom were on the arrangements and three for refreshments. An elaborate lunch was prepared and served on an approved plan. Seven young ladies, attired in white, were the waitresses, and all the arrangements passed off in a very pleasant manner. At the beginning of the repast grace was said by the president, Mrs. Homer White, and at the conclusion roll call was responded to by quotations by the members, after which a selected reading was given by Mrs. Joslyn. A large bouquet of chrysanthemums graced the head of the table at which were seated the present and past officers of the organizations. Dainty place cards, the work of one of the waitresses, Miss Lena Kilburn, on the back of which was prepared and served on an approved plan. The table of each member and also served as a souvenir of a very pleasant occasion.

For Fourth Quarter.

A suburban family has a servant who is an excellent cook but insists upon making all her dishes strictly according to her own recipes. Her mistress gave her full swing not only as to cooking, but as to the purchasing of supplies. The other day the mistress said:

"Now, the coffee you are giving us is very good. What kind is it?"

"It's no kind at all, mum," replied the cook. "It's a mixer."

"How do you mix it?"

"I make it one-quarter Mocha and one-quarter Java, and one-quarter Rio." "But that's only one-third-quarters. What do you put in for the other quarter?"

"I put in no quarter at all, mum. That's where so many spoils the coffee, mum, by putting in a fourth quarter."—Philadelphia Ledger.

MONTPELIER.

E. O. Wedge has returned from Canada where he went the other day to look over certain timber lands which he has been interested. The prospect didn't impress him just at this time. However, he will go there again to look at the property a second time.

Rev. W. S. Smithers went to Rutland Saturday. He has commenced a two weeks' trip through that part of the state. Yesterday he preached in Mechanville and will follow through the towns in that locality until all the parishes have been visited.

Miss Anna Griffin sailed at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon for Paris where she will remain for a year. Her opportunity to go is an excellent one. She goes with Mr. and Mrs. Spencer, who have been spending the summer at their home in Waterbury. They spend a part of their time in Paris and the remainder in Waterbury. Miss Griffin goes as companion of Mrs. Spencer. Miss Griffin's home is in Fayston, but she has lived in Montpelier for a couple of years. Mr. and Mrs. Spencer will remain in Paris a year.

A city bowling league has been formed. Four five-men teams compose the league and every Tuesday and Friday evening until New Year's there will be a three string match with the big pins for the city championship. Interest in the game is rife and there will be intense rivalry among the teams to carry off the honors. From among the members of these four teams, at the completion of the series an all-city team to represent Montpelier will be selected and a schedule with out of town bowling aggregations will be arranged. A. W. Daley, Edward Gill, J. E. Leland and Carl F. Holt will captain the respective teams, which comprise some of the city's most skillful bowling lights.

TEMPTS HIDDEN MONEY.
Roosevelt Practically Decides Upon $100,000, Relief Measure.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—Recognizing that restoration of confidence in the business world requires exercise of the vast fiscal power possessed in the federal government, it is understood that President Roosevelt has practically decided upon the issuance of $100,000,000 of three per cent. certificates of indebtedness, payable in one year or less.

The authority of such action is contained in an almost forgotten section of the revised statutes enacted for war revenue purpose in 1898.

Secretary Cortelyou's scrutiny of all treasury authorities for relief work brought this to light, and for several days, including the period of the secretary's recent visit to New York, it has been the principal step considered as an aid to the financial depression.

It is expected that this will enable the government to tempt from its hiding places millions of dollars which have been hoarded by persons distrustful even of national banks.

Rumors were current today that the new relief measure would be made the subject of formal announcement tonight, but up to a late hour no such statement had been given out.

Secretary Cortelyou, the President, Secretary Root and Postmaster-General Meyer, who held a conference at the White House Saturday night, are supposed to be the only persons really familiar with all the relief measures which have been taken up, considered, discarded or continued under advisement.

The financial situation formed the topic of an important conference at the White House Saturday night, those participating, in addition to the President, being Secretaries Cortelyou, Root and Postmaster-General Meyer. No statement was obtainable as to the result.

Later, Secretary Cortelyou returned to the White House alone and remained with the President a half-hour, when the financial subject further was discussed.

Secretary Cortelyou, after leaving the White House at 11 o'clock, went to the Treasury Department.

Secretary Garfield and Secretary Leeb also were with the President a portion of the evening.

MAURETANIA SAILS.

IN RACE WITH SISTER.

Biggest Cunarder Leaves Liverpool With 18 Tons of Gold on Maiden Trip Over.

Liverpool, Nov. 18.—Many thousands witnessed the departure of the Cunard turbine steamer Mauretania, a sister ship of the Lusitania, shortly after 7:30 Saturday night. Special trains from London brought over 300 special passengers. The huge liner, which was brilliantly lighted, presented an imposing spectacle, dwarfing everything in the neighborhood. Her 2,000 passengers are said to be the greatest number ever taken on one ship to America.

She carried $2,750,000; 18 tons of gold, whose custodian never took his eyes off the curious little steel-bound chests until they were safely stowed below. The crowds cheered enthusiastically as the vessel drew out from the landing stage.

At about the same time the Lusitania left New York on the eastern passage. The two ocean sisters are each trying to make port first.

WANT COLORED EVENING SUITS.

M. Bernstein, Author of "Samson," Appears at Theatre in Brown.

Paris, Nov. 18.—For some time past the Beau Brummels of Paris society have been trying to introduce colored dress suits in place of the universal black.

The campaign, which hitherto remained in the domain of theory, seemed to have entered into a practical phase at the dress rehearsals of "Samson" at the Renaissance theatre when M. Henry Bernstein, author of the play, appeared in a brown dress suit. However, it apparently was not to his liking as a consequence of its conspicuousness. He wore an ordinary evening dress at the first night.

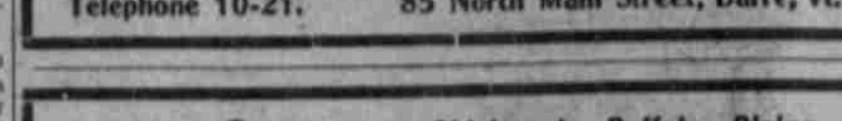

The campaign against universal and funeral black continues, but conservatism men claim that it will be difficult to change the custom of wearing black, as that color is too closely identified with the modern state of mind. Others suggest changing, not the color, but the shape of evening dress coat by abolishing the swallow tails.

Argo Red Salmon is rapidly becoming a household word in this locality. At all grocers.
